BRIEF FOR APPLICANTS

BALTIC Centre for Contemporary Art (Gateshead), Siobhan Davies Dance (SDD – London), Unlimited, Tramway (Glasgow) and Bluecoat (Liverpool) are delighted to announce a new artist commission opportunity as part of the CONTINUOUS Network programme for 2021/22.

Our collaboration seeks to support the creation of a new disabled-led dance work, from an artist based in England (due to funding limitations). This is part of our broader programme to advance the creation, presentation and development of audiences for experimental independent contemporary dance in visual art contexts. This opportunity follows the first two CONTINUOUS commissions (2018/19), Lucy Suggate's Spirit Compass which premiered at BALTIC in Autumn 2019 before touring nationwide, and Zinzi Minott's Black on Black: 24R due to premiere at BALTIC in March 2021 (following postponement due to COVID-19) before a UK-wide tour.

SUMMARY

The CONTINUOUS Network launched in 2019 to support artists and organisations to learn from one another about how to create the best conditions for making and presenting dance in a gallery context, and for engaging audiences. We also wish to share that knowledge with colleagues and the public. Alongside Siobhan Davies Dance, BALTIC, Tramway, and Bluecoat, CONTINUOUS Network partners include; Dance4 (Nottingham), Nottingham Contemporary (Nottingham), The Tetley (Leeds), Tramway (Glasgow) Turner Contemporary (Margate) and Yorkshire Dance (Leeds).

This CONTINUOUS x Unlimited Commission sees us partnering with Unlimited, a commissioning programme supporting disabled artists, to commission a disabled artist, or collective of artists, to make a new work for initial presentation at BALTIC, Tramway and Bluecoat. We wish to work with applicants to ensure this process is as accessible as possible.

The artist/s will be hosted by BALTIC and Siobhan Davies Dance to develop their work. Practitioners will be supported by and have access to both organisations, keeping artists at the centre of this collaborative approach. Both BALTIC and Siobhan Davies Studios in London are available for development time (if required).

These organisations aim to be leaders nationally and internationally in supporting the creation and presentation of work at the intersection of dance and visual art, and in generating audience engagement and critical dialogue.

Like many, this project has been affected by the Coronavirus pandemic, particularly as it is based on a group of Network partners presenting and investing in new dance works for their galleries, which have been closed since March 2020. The impact for each partner varies in terms of building opening, social distancing measures in their buildings, and financial situations. However, we are able to guarantee support for this commission to premiere and be presented at BALTIC and Tramway in 2021, it will then tour to Bluecoat and potentially to additional partner venues in 2022 with support from the Network.

We recognise that the environment remains uncertain and some artists may want or need to remain working at home for an extended period of time. We are prepared to support artists to realise their work amidst the changing circumstances, including undertaking some or all of their production process from home.

WHAT WE ARE OFFERING

We will select an artist (or collective of artists) to create one new commission, either physically or virtually, to be premiered at BALTIC (in September 2021) and subsequently tour to Tramway to be presented as part of DIG Festival (8-23 October 2021), and to Bluecoat in 2022.

The commission includes:

- Artist fee of £7,155 incl. VAT (expected 9 weeks at £795 per week)
- Production budget of £22,000
- Access allowance of £4,500 (expected to cover artists access costs for production phase)

The commission budget should cover all costs associated with production. It is not anticipated that additional fundraising be sought, to encourage sustainability within the available budget and reduce the risk of fundraising impacting timelines for development. The commission funds can be distributed as the applicant sees fit, for instance in the case of collective applicants the fees and production budget may be redistributed.

For premiere and subsequent performances separate budgets will be agreed (up to £7500 each performance) which should include fees, production costs, any travel or other expenses, and both artist access allowance and audience/presentation access costs.

Additional in-kind support includes:

- 4 weeks of in-kind rehearsal / residency space at BALTIC and SDD

- Curatorial and production support from BALTIC and SDD
- Marketing and documentation
- Tour management for presentations
- Access to all commissioning partner networks
- Shortlisted artists will be invited to join Unlimited's alumni which provides access to training, development, support and networking opportunities

A conversation about the offer and our approach to supporting access requirements can be had informally with Network Producer Sally Rose: sallyr@siobhandavies.com at any point during this process.

WE ARE LOOKING FOR PROJECTS THAT

- Are led by dance artists or choreographers who are disabled
- Come from artists with practices evidencing commitment, risk-taking and well-developed ideas
- Are specifically created for presentation in a contemporary visual art context
- Reflect a strong track record of creating work and reaching audiences
- Are clearly articulated and have had some research and development. This may have been funded by Arts Council England or other sources, or be self-supported

SELECTION CRITERIA

Our primary concern is with the rigour of the proposed project, the artist's interest and enthusiasm for working with a visual art context, and a strong rationale for wanting to be part of this programme at this stage of their career, evidenced by the expression of interest.

Previous experience of working in galleries as a performer or choreographer is not required, rather a demonstrable interest and curiosity in creating and presenting work in a gallery context, and an anticipation of the conditions that may be required for this.

We are committed to amplifying practices reflecting a range of backgrounds that might crossover between art forms, but are rooted in dance and choreography. We are inviting artists with different skills, experiences and voices to join us. We actively encourage applications from those who consider themselves as experiencing marginalisation in this field.

THE WORK

- Should be rooted in choreographic practice
- Can involve other mediums, or artistic collaborators, and be performed by artists other than the applicant themselves
- Can be durational or a fixed duration
- Can take place in a gallery, a public space or be presented via video or online
- Should be appropriate & adaptable to the spaces available at BALTIC (i.e. BALTIC's Performance Space, galleries or public space), Bluecoat and Tramway (i.e. T5 space at Tramway), or respond to the spaces where it will be displayed (if presented virtually)
- Will be developed through genuine engagement with commissioning partners

WHO CAN APPLY?

- Independent disabled dance artists or choreographers, or collectives of artists, are encouraged to apply
- Applicants should have a practice in dance and/or choreography evidenced by minimum 3 years of professional activity
- Formal dance or choreographic training is not required
- Applicants for this commission must be based in England due to funding limits

Unlimited, and the commissioning partners Siobhan Davies Dance, BALTIC, Tramway and Bluecoat use an inclusive definition of disability based on the Social Model approach (as opposed to the Medical Model), which, by focusing on the disabling barriers imposed by society, embraces all physical, sensory and invisible impairments, learning disability, mental health, neurodivergent and fatigue conditions, see definition by Unlimited on the Shape website. If you identify as such, and/or have experienced access barriers, we invite you to apply, or contact us for a conversation.

WHAT WE EXPECT FROM SELECTED ARTISTS

This opportunity is both a commission to create a new work and an opportunity to exchange knowledge with the staff of SDD, BALTIC, Tramway, and Bluecoat. This supports our aim for artists and organisations to learn from one another about how to create the best conditions for making and presenting dance in a gallery context, and for engaging audiences. We wish to support ambitious ideas and concepts. We also wish to share that knowledge with colleagues and the public, therefore an enthusiasm for audiences and public engagement, an interest in documenting and evaluating your working process and sharing this with colleagues and the public is essential.

You will be invited to take part in evaluation activities around the project to help inform the future work of the Network. As a commissioned artist you may also be invited to participate in other activities with SDD and BALTIC such as audience engagement work, sharing of work in progress, talks and other events, for which additional fees will be available.

PRINCIPLES OF CONTINUOUS NETWORK

We are committed to care and knowledge exchange around topics including production, presentation, access, curation, communications, audience engagement and critical / intellectual frameworks and supporting structural change within the Dance and Visual Arts sectors. This includes working against all barriers to access and participation and all forms of oppression present within the arts and within the organisations in the Network, and seeking equity in our work.

We are striving to build better knowledge and practices around accessibility requirements, and aiming for trust and ease in our relationships with disabled artists. Our efforts here have been informed by working with artists so far through the CONTINUOUS project, and receiving critical feedback on the need to improve our capacity and experience in these relationships, along with better understanding the structures within the institutions involved in the project and how they impact artists. This ongoing process includes developing more rigorous procedures for discussing and addressing access needs with artists and all freelancers, co-creating shared access commitments and practices among CONTINUOUS Network partners, raising awareness and holding training within our teams, and increasing the amount of resources dedicated to access support available through our projects.

We are actively committed to learning and improving and are open to feedback and dialogue around all elements of our work as a Network, and throughout this process.
